Weekend School Teacher Pack

Simple printable sheets to track every child's Quran reading through the whole year, keep a register, and get parents revising at home between classes. Free to photocopy for your students.

What's inside

- Page 2: Class register. Twelve weeks of attendance for up to 20 children.
- Page 3: Class Qaida progress chart. One row per child and one column for each of the 13 Noorani Qaida lessons, then Juz Amma and the Mushaf.
- Page 4: Student progress card. One per child: the date each lesson was passed, and the teacher's initials.
- Page 5: Weekly home-revision slips. Four slips per page to tell parents exactly what to revise this week.
- Page 6: Weekly lesson plan. A one-page plan for each class day: revision, new lesson, dua and story.

How to use it

- First week: listen to each child read, mark where they are on the progress chart, and fill in their progress card.
- Every class: start with a short revision of last week's lesson before anything new.
- End of class: fill in a revision slip for each child and send it home.
- Pass a lesson only when it is fluent, not just finished. Write the date on the chart and the card.
- Each term: send the progress card home so parents can see how far their child has come.
